General Instructions

Keep your eyes on your own test. Examinees giving or receiving answers or using notes or other aids will be disqualified, and they will fail. Examination fees will not be refunded. Examinees with cell phones, pagers, or other electronic devices should check them in with the proctor now.

Look at the TOP RIGHT of SIDE ONE of your answer sheet. Fill in the following information on the lines:

- FULL NAME: print your full name in this order: family name, then first name, then middle initial (MI). Use all capital letters.
- YOUR SIGNATURE: sign your name.
- TEST CENTER: print the name of the test center.
- NATIVE LANGUAGE: print your native language.
- TODAY’S DATE: print the month, day, and year.
- Darken the circle that best describes your main purpose for obtaining this certificate.

Look at the TOP LEFT of SIDE ONE of your answer sheet. Use capital letters to fill in the following information in the blocks. Use the same spelling you used on your registration form:

- LAST NAME: print your main family name in the blocks, one letter per block. There are 13 blocks. If your last name is longer than 13 letters, print only the first 13 letters.
- FIRST: print the first 6 letters of your first name.
- MI: print the initial of your middle name.

Look at the columns of CIRCLES BELOW THE BLOCKS:

- Find the letter that is the same as the letter you have printed in the block above.
- Darken the circle completely so that you cannot see the letter inside.
- Do this for all the letters of your last name, first name, and your middle initial.
- Darken only one circle in each of the columns.

- BIRTHDATE: find the month you were born and darken the circle next to it.
- DAY: print the day you were born. If it is a 1-digit day, write zero first. Darken the circles underneath these numbers.
- YEAR: print the last 2 digits of the year you were born. Darken the circles underneath these numbers.
- SEX: darken the circle “M” (male) or “F” (female).
- LANG. (LANGUAGE): print the 2-digit code number for your native language (the examiner will tell you the number). Darken the circles.
- FORM: darken the circle of the form letter on your test booklet. Make sure the form letter you darken matches the form letter on this booklet.
- CENTER NO.: print the 3-digit test center number (the examiner will tell you the number). Darken the circles.
- REG. NO.: print your 6-digit personal registration number. Include all zeros, including those at the beginning of the number. Darken the circles.

This test may be machine scored, so you must follow instructions carefully:

- Do not bend or fold your answer sheet.
- Mark all your answers on the separate answer sheet, not in the test booklet.
- Use a number 2 (soft) pencil.
- Your mark must be dark enough to be picked up by the scanning machine. The scanner cannot see very light marks.
- Do not make any other marks on your answer sheet.
- If you change your mind about an answer, erase your first mark completely.
- Fill in only one circle for each question.
- Any question with more than one answer marked will be counted wrong.
- If you are not sure about an answer, you may guess.

When instructed to, look through the rest of the test booklet to see that it is complete. Check the pages quickly. You should have 31 numbered pages in your test booklet. If there are pages missing from your booklet, raise your hand and a proctor will give you a replacement.

This passage is about a type of paint.

Ultramarine is one of two pigments used to create the color blue in Italian Renaissance paintings. It was preferred over azurite, the other blue pigment, because it provided a richer, brighter color that complemented the warm golds common in fourteenth- and fifteenth-century Italian paintings. It also resisted fading over time. However, it was ten to fifteen times more expensive than azurite, oftentimes surpassing gold in price.

The pigment was expensive for several reasons. The stone it is made from, lapis lazuli, had to be imported into Europe from Middle Eastern mines. In fact, ultramarine means “from beyond the sea.” Creating the pigment was also laborious and time-consuming. First, one needed to grind the stone into powder by hand. Because the powder contained impurities, it was pale gray. This powder was mixed with melted wax, resins, and oils to form a paste. The paste was immersed in a special bowl filled with a weak lye solution and beaten with sticks. This released particles of blue material which collected at the bottom of this container. The impurities remained in the paste. After the particles were removed, this process was repeated at least twice, each time yielding a lower grade of pigment. In all, only two to three percent of the stone eventually became pigment.

Due to the cost of ultramarine production, people who wanted paintings made had special contracts written that specified how much of it would be provided for the painter. To save on the pigment, painters used it only on the focal points of paintings, such as the robes of Jesus and the Virgin Mary.
This passage is about the early history of railroads.

Rail transportation is often viewed as a development of the Industrial Revolution in the early 1800s, but should be viewed more accurately as evolving over a period of several hundred years. The first use of rails in transportation was in the 1500s in Europe. These “rails” were flat wooden boards used in mining. A cart with roller wheels, known as a hund, was moved along the rails through mine tunnels. The name hund, German for dog, refers to the barking sound the carts made as they rolled along the underground rails.

By the early 1600s, aboveground wooden railways had been developed in England. Used by the mining industry to transport coal, these “wagonways” featured vehicles with flanged wooden wheels that ran on raised wooden rails. The flange, or lip, of the wheel hung over the side of the rail, keeping the wheel in place. Horses pulled the wagons along the route. Because the loads were heavy, wagonways usually ran downhill from the mine to a river. The horses would then pull the vehicles back uphill empty.

Well over a hundred years later, some wagonways were built with rails made of iron. However, the vehicles were still hauled by horses, and many routes still used wooden rails until the introduction of steam locomotion in the nineteenth century. Steam engines proved too heavy for wooden rails to support. Even some of the early iron rails were not strong enough to carry them and split under their massive weight.

126. According to the author, what incorrect idea do many people have about railways?
   a. They always relied on engines for power.
   b. They first appeared in the 1800s.
   c. They were created to transport people.
   d. They were first used for mining.

127. How were the first rails different from modern rails?
   a. They were made of wood.
   b. They could be rolled into different positions.
   c. They were raised above ground level.
   d. They were placed alongside existing roads.

128. Why was the first railway cart called a hund?
   a. The first railway carts rode on rails.
   b. The first railway carts made a sound like a dog.
   c. The first railway carts carried dogs.
   d. The first railway carts had roller wheels.

129. How were wagonways originally used?
   a. to carry goods from river ports to towns
   b. to transport loads from mines
   c. to replace wooden rails
   d. to move heavy materials between factories

130. Why does the author mention the weight of railway engines?
   a. to identify a problem with early rails
   b. to suggest why early railways ran slowly
   c. to make a point about the superiority of steam engines
   d. to compare railway engines to other kinds of engines

B No Gym Required

Many with office jobs struggle to find the time and opportunity for regular exercise, but if you spend most of your day in a chair, it’s even more important to maintain a healthy level of activity. Here are a few easy ways to boost your fitness!

• Park far away from the door. Do this at work or when you’re running errands—the extra steps add up over time!
• Take the stairs! Climbing boosts your heart rate and tones muscles. If you work in a high-rise, get off the elevator a few floors early.
• Stand up for at least a few minutes every hour. This helps negate health problems that come from sitting too long; set a timer on your computer to remind you.

C A Step or a Sprint?

If you exercise regularly, chances are walking or running play a big part in your fitness routine. But is one of these actually better for you than the other? The answer depends on your goals.

If you are looking to get (or stay) thin, running is best. This is not just because running burns more calories per hour, but because hunger-reducing hormones are more present after running than after walking. It seems odd, but studies have shown runners are less hungry after exercising than walkers.

Walking has its strong points too. One study showed that walking lowered the risk of heart disease even more than running. Of course the best choice of all is simply exercising—regardless of your method.

D Maximum Effort for Maximum Benefits?

The importance of regular exercise is stressed by doctors, scientists, and the media. The typical message is that we aren’t exercising enough—and many of us aren’t. But is there such a thing as too much exercise? Can exercise ever be harmful?

As it turns out, the saying “all things in moderation” does apply to exercise. Several studies have shown that athletes who regularly compete at high levels, like marathon runners or long-distance bikers, are more at risk for certain health problems, particularly heart issues, and may not live as long as people who exercise at less vigorous levels.

There is no consensus on exactly how much is too much. Most scientists agree that it depends on the person. But sticking to the general guidelines of 150 minutes of moderate activity each week is a good bet. The health benefits of that amount of exercise are well established by science. You may need to exercise more if weight loss is your goal, but it may be best to leave extreme endurance events like marathons to once a year at most. In other words, it’s best to exercise every day, but there’s no need to do so for longer than an hour each day.

Basque in It

Spain is known worldwide for its food. And no small part of that recognition is thanks to Basque cuisine. The Basque are an ethnic group whose traditional territory is primarily in northern Spain but also extends into southern France. Basque cuisine is a distinct and important part of the Basque culture, and luckily for the rest of the world, it’s delicious.

Basque cuisine leans heavily on what’s in season and what’s local: fish straight from the ocean, mushrooms from the woods, vegetables from Basque farms. The highlight of Basque cuisine is its focus on using the highest quality ingredients and combining them in original, flavorful recipes.

If you visit San Sebastian, Spain (also known as Donostia), a Basque food hotspot, you can hop from restaurant to restaurant like the locals do. Be sure to sample small dishes called pintxos. Wherever you visit, you’ll likely see someone asking the chef for whatever’s best that day, rather than requesting specific menu items.

Basque cuisine is popular in several parts of the world, with many restaurants serving pintxos or traditional Basque dinners. We owe this to several notable chefs who’ve taken an interest in Basque cuisine and to Basque emigrants in other countries who have shared a taste of their homeland.

• Your essay will be judged on how clearly you express your ideas. Use the appropriate format for a letter or essay.

The City Times

New Supermarket

A company wants to build a very large supermarket at the edge of our city. It will be one of the largest supermarkets in the country. The company says customers will be able to find everything they want at low prices. Owners of small, local shops are worried that the new supermarket could ruin their businesses.

Task 1: Letter

The City Times is interested in citizens’ opinions about the new supermarket. Do you think it should be built in your city or not? Write a letter to the editor, giving specific reasons to explain your view. Begin your letter, “Dear Editor.”

Task 2: Essay

What are the advantages and disadvantages of shopping at very large supermarkets? How does it compare to shopping in small, local stores? Give specific examples to support your answer.

When you have selected your task, remember to fill in “letter” or “essay” in the ECCE Writing Response box in the front of your writing answer document.
