General Information

- MET Go! is a general English proficiency test designed for learners of middle to secondary school age.
- MET Go! is aimed at levels A1 to B1 of the Common European Framework of Reference (CEFR). The CEFR describes language proficiency at six main levels, from A1-A2 (Basic User), B1-B2 (Independent User) to C1-C2 (Proficient User).
- The overall score and CEFR level reported are averages of the sections tested.
- Detailed personalized feedback is provided on the back of this score report.
- A section score of X means the test taker was exempt from that section. A section score of 0 means the test taker did not attempt the section, or their answer was not on topic.
- Because language proficiency can change over time, if a significant amount of time has passed since the test was taken, score users should consider the test taker's subsequent experience with English in addition to the test scores themselves.
- If the exam location is listed as Remote, the test was taken in a location other than on-site at a test center. Multiple security measures are followed for remote exams. More details are available at MichiganAssessment.org.
- Authorized institutions may use the verification code to ensure the validity of results. Learn more about verifying test results at MichiganAssessment.org.
- Michigan Language Assessment reserves the right to update results or test taker information.

About Your English

You can understand conversations and talks about everyday things well. When listening, you can understand main points as well as details. Also, you can recognize people's attitude and purpose in conversations and talks. Learning more English grammar can help you understand more of what you hear.

Things To Do

Watch a review of a movie or product you like. According to the reviewer, what are the good things about it? What are the bad things about it?

You can understand many of the details in what you read. Also, you can connect different parts of a reading. You can understand the main idea or purpose of short readings as well. You know simple grammar and some more difficult grammar, and it helps you to understand what you read. In addition, you know many English vocabulary words. They help you understand simple readings about topics you are familiar with whether they are short or long.

Read a review about a movie you have seen. Do you agree or disagree with the writer's opinion? What points do you agree or disagree with, and why? Tell a friend.

You can tell a story, write about your personal experiences, and express your opinions. Your writing is well-developed and includes good details. Plus, your writing makes it easy for the reader to follow what you are saying. When writing, your excellent grammar and vocabulary skills make your thoughts clear to the reader. You include some long sentences and advanced vocabulary to communicate your ideas.

Think about a time you disagreed with someone. In English, write about the topic and give your opinion about it. Also, give reasons with examples to support your opinion.
